CARINAR coverage requested n!

B. Friedrich FRANK
Munich 9, Grunwaldstrasse 53
Telephone number unknown

(Comments) FLEMING said he was known that FRANK had a telephone number but that the number listed in the current telephone book. FLEMING also said FRANK was a friend of FRIESSEN's and also a former SD-type but left from UJVENTURE when asked for further details FLEMING said he mentioned that FRANK might have been involved in the wartime training of Germans mentioned in one of the early conversations in the FRIESSEN coverage. UJVENTURE information indicates FRANK claimed to be an UPHILL staffer, present assignment unknown. It is difficult to verify why BERNHARDT and FLEMING decided to try to conceal FRANK's UPHILL affiliation.

1. Friedrich FRANK - With reference to UPHILL's request for CALIFORNIA information on FRANK, FLEMING said he had just learned that the Dutch were attempting to locate FRANK in connection with his involvement with German authorities in Holland near the end of the war. FLEMING said the Dutch had information to the effect that FRANK personally had shot a number of Dutchmen apparently of his own volition and not on orders from any superior.

2. Friedrich FRANK - The following points were discussed:

A. FLEMING gave an oral run-down on FRANK's background. This time he chose to notes about the fact that FRANK was an UPHILL staffer. FLEMING said FRANK had been recruited on LIJDRÖSY's recommendation in 1953.

B. FLEMING said that UPHILL's investigation now indicated that FRANK had a fairly unsavory Nazi and SD past. FLEMING elaborated somewhat on his earlier comments on the subject of present Dutch interest in locating FRANK and noted that it was not certain if the Dutch had had any luck in pinning down his present whereabouts.

C. At the end of the war FRANK had managed to stay out of trouble by going under two different assumed names. He left Holland at the end of the war documented as a German naval officer. He was able to do this with the assistance of the German Navy commanding officer in Holland who was a close friend. In the late 1940's he adopted another false identity (which will not entirely clear to UPHILL) in connection with this second false identity until circa 1951 when he returned to his true identity. After making a false statement to the effect that he had been registered and living under a false name (approximately 1951) he felt that the heat was off sufficiently so that he could return to his true identity without getting into a jam.

D. [] said we did not as yet have telephone coverage on FRANK because he apparently had an unlisted number we had not as yet been able to pinpoint. (Comment: In the above discussion, [] thought it better not to raise the ticklish question of how UPHILL could have recruited anyone with a background quite as murky as FRANK's seems to be.)

10. Friedrich FRANK - I called KASTRUP's attention to a funny phone call between FRANK and Herr TRAUD, circa 29 June - probably UPHILL business, but if not a clandestine get-together - especially since the Herr TRAUD who called FRANK has (per monitor's comment) a Slavic accent.
